

Pevely Farms Golf Club

Contributed by Bryan Spitzer
Wednesday, 23 July 2008
Last Updated Wednesday, 23 July 2008

Our world-class golf course at Pevely Farms, which opened in 1998, was laid out by one of the greatest names in golfing architecture - Arthur Hills, who has created more than 100 courses and renovated dozens more. Among the courses that bear his trademark are Oakmont, famed site of the 1994 U.S. Open; Oakland Hills, site of the 1996 U.S. Open; Bighorn Golf Club, where numerous golfing showdowns have been held; The Golf Club of Georgia, site of the Nationwide senior championship; and the Tournament Players Club at Eagle Trace, site of the PGA Honda Classic.

Courtesy: Pevely Farms Golf Club

Pevely Farms, a once-thriving dairy show farm, has been transformed into a world-class golf experience by one of the greatest names in golf course architecture, Arthur Hills. He has delicately sculpted this 18-hole championship golf course into the natural beauty of the Meramec River Valley. For any golfer visiting St. Louis, this is a must-play.

The layout, playing at over 7,100 yards from the championship tees, features manicured zoysia fairways and bent grass greens. Hills' layout will appeal to golfers of all skill levels and will provide an excellent challenge for the scratch golfer as well as pleasure and fun for the occasional player. While many courses have one scenic hole or two, Pevely Farms has one postcard-worthy view after another. From the many challenges in elevation, to the carries over water, to the fir trees and oaks along the fairways, to the breathtaking vistas of the Meramec Valley, every detail of our course stands in harmony with its surroundings.

Courtesy: Pevely Farms Golf Club